SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection of approximately 12,000 items, covering the period from ca. 1785 to 1942, includes copies of church minutes, membership rolls, registers, charters, constitutions, and deeds; surveys of records kept by churches in 73 Tennessee counties; historical sketches of churches, religious movements, and colleges; newspaper clippings about churches and lists of churches; biographical sketches; correspondence pertaining to the survey; and rough drafts of guides which were later published.

There are handwritten copies of original records from ca. 1785 to 1938. The earliest record found in the collection was the minutes, 1785-1844, of the Bent Creek Baptist Church in Hamblen County, Tennessee.

In the collection are copies of original church records from the 26 counties of Bledsoe, Cocke, Davidson, DeKalb, Fayette, Giles, Hamblen, Hamilton, Jackson, Jefferson, Knox, Lawrence, Madison, Marion, Monroe, Montgomery, Polk, Rhea, Rutherford, Sequatchie, Shelby, Smith, Sumner, Tipton, Warren, and Wilson (Boxes 1-5).

Religious groups for which there are copies of original records include the Baptist, Christian, Churches of Christ, Cumberland Presbyterian, Episcopal, Methodist, Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic Churches.

In addition to the above, there are other records, including surveys, historical sketches, newspaper clippings, etc., for such religious groups as Assemblies of God, Church of Christ Scientist (Christian Science), Churches of God and Holiness bodies, Congregational, Disciples of Christ, Evangelical bodies, Jehovah's Witnesses, Jewish, Lutheran, Mennonite, Methodist bodies, Moravian (United Brethren), Mormon (Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints), Nazarene, Pentecostal bodies, Presbyterian bodies, Seventh Day Adventist, Spiritualist bodies, Unitarian, and Universalist Churches.

There is a limited amount of material pertaining to other religious groups such as the Advent Christian Church, Baha'i Spiritual Assembly, Eastern Orthodox Church (Hellenic), Moorish Science Temple, Plymouth Brethren, and Unity School of Christianity. Many independent and non-denominational churches, missions, institutional chapels, community agencies, etc., are included.

Community agencies for which there are surveys of records include: Boy Scouts, Fisk University Social Center, Florence Crittenton Mission Home, Girl Scouts, Good Samaritan Army of America, Inc., Good Will Industries, Grace M. Eaton Day Home, Salvation Army, Unity Truth Center, Young Men's Christian Association, and Young Women's Christian Association, among numerous others.

Although there are many counties for which there are a few church surveys, the largest number are from the 34 counties of Bedford, Benton, Bledsoe, Bradley, Carroll, Carter, Cheatham, Crockett, Davidson,* Decatur, Dyer, Fayette, Hamblen, Hamilton,* Haywood, Humphreys, Knox,* Lauderdale, Lawrence, Loudon, Madison, Maury, Monroe, Montgomery, Obion, Perry, Putnam, Roane, Shelby,* Sullivan, Sumner, Tipton, Washington, and White.

The church surveys contain information relating to the church's history, its building(s), records, and affiliations. Often references are made to the location of published or unpublished histories of the church, to deeds, or to mention of the church in official records. At times excerpts from deeds are included with the surveys, although the researcher interested in church property records should also consult the folders of deeds in Boxes 1 through 5.

Items of particular interest include the historical sketch (Box 7, f. 2) which reveals the attitude of the Baptist Church toward slavery in 1805, and describes the "jerks", a religious experience, and the Baptists' participation in the Great Revival.

The religious conversion of Nathan Bedford Forrest at Court Avenue Church in Memphis, Tennessee (no date given), is mentioned in the historical sketch of the Cumberland Presbyterian movement (Box 7, f. 3). The church was established as a Cumberland Presbyterian Church in 1827 and joined the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. in 1905. The beginning of women's work in the Methodist Church is traced in another sketch (Box 7, f. 12).

Short biographical sketches of several early Cumberland Presbyterian Church leaders are included in the historical sketch on the Cumberland Presbyterian movement (Box 7, f. 3). Among these are those for Claiborne Albert Davis, Finis Ewing, Samuel King, Samuel McAdow, Ephriam McLean, and William E. Ward.

In addition to historical sketches of various churches, including one (Box 5, f. 2) for Hermitage Church, erected by General Andrew Jackson for his wife Rachel, there are sketches of church-related schools (Box 9). Among these are those for Lambuth College (1824-1935), Jackson, Tennessee, a Presbyterian school, and its predecessor, Memphis Conference Female Institute (1837-1920); Lane College (1882-1938), Jackson, Tennessee, a school sponsored by the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America; Scarritt College for Christian Workers (1892-1923), Nashville, Tennessee, a Methodist Episcopal school for church leaders from various denominations; Trevecca Nazarene College (1901-1928), Nashville, Tennessee; and Union University (1842-1922), Jackson, Tennessee, a Baptist school.

* The four counties for which there are the largest number of church surveys.

Other historical sketches deal with the history of Baptists, Cumberland Presbyterians, Methodists, Methodist Episcopalians, and United Brethren (Moravian) denominations in Tennessee.
